

Christmas Truce

By Alexandre Lafon

Summary

In December 1914, there were several truces between enemy soldiers along one part of the Western front. Widely publicized, they underscore how difficult it was for soldiers to adapt to the conditions of a long and deadly war already underway since the summer. They were also part of a broader movement to that sought to limit the violence of the war on all fronts.

Table of contents

1 Christmas 1914

2 Broader Context

Selected Bibliography

Citation

Christmas 1914

On Christmas 1914, several truces were declared between armies that had been fighting a deadly war for several months along different parts of the front. Soldiers – for the most part conscripts and volunteers – were far from their loved ones and subjected to the harsh conditions of trench life. They had to contend with a lasting war and the reality of daily casualties, weather conditions, arduous battles to correct positions and deadly attacks to attempt to break through enemy lines. Christmas was a celebration shared by both sides and recalled for both the comforts of home and a desire for peace. From trench to trench, men called out and threw each other newspapers, tobacco and food. They challenged each other with rounds of songs and shared traditional Christmas carols. German, French and British soldiers' accounts mention actual encounters in no man's land, including some impromptu football matches. These Christmas truces were particularly covered in the British and German press.

Broader Context

The Christmas truces appear to fit into the broader context of movements to limit the violence of war, as historian Tony Ashworth has notably shown regarding the British front throughout the war. A system of “live and let live” existed between enemy trenches at several periods and in several sectors along the front. Such fraternization was also a form of both individual and collective disobedience towards military authority and allowed soldiers to conceive of the enemy as a comrade. Several French, German and English-speaking historians have pointed to attempts by soldier-citizens to exercise their right to contest. Despite depersonalization and feelings of animosity that likely fuelled the violence of trench warfare, cases of fraternization including the Christmas truces underscore the ability of soldiers to assess the relevance of the war and, in some cases, to deem fraternization more legitimate. And yet such behaviour was nonetheless kept in check by the social and military norms of war, the high degree of supervision (particularly in the Italian army, for example) and feelings of anger directed at the enemy, all of which were reinforced by military strategies to perpetuate the combativeness of men.

Alexandre Lafon, Université de Toulouse 2 – Jean-Jaurès

Selected Bibliography

- Ashworth, Tony: Trench warfare 1914-1918. The live and let live system, New York, 1980: Holmes & Meier.
- Barthas, Louis, Cazals, Rémy \(ed.\): Les carnets de guerre de Louis Barthas, tonnelier \(1914-1918\), Paris, 1978: F. Maspéro.
- Bourke, Joanna: An intimate history of killing. Face-to-face killing in twentieth-century warfare, New York, 1999: Basic Books.
- Ferro, Marc \(ed.\): Frères de tranchées, Paris, 2005: Perrin.
- Loez, André: Fraternisations, in: : Les 100 mots de la Grande Guerre, Paris 2013 Presses universitaires de France, pp. 58-59.
- Watson, Alexander: Enduring the Great War. Combat, morale and collapse in the German and British armies, 1914-1918, Cambridge; New York, 2008: Cambridge University Press.

Citation

Alexandre Lafon: Christmas Truce, in: 1914-1918-online. International Encyclopedia of the First World War, ed. by Ute Daniel, Peter Gatrell, Oliver Janz, Heather Jones, Jennifer D. Keene, Alan Kramer, and Bill Nasson, issued by Freie Universität Berlin, Berlin 2015-10-26. DOI: 10.15463/ie1418.10750

External Links

- Clements, Kate: Voices of the First World War, Podcast 9: The Christmas Truce \(Imperial War Museums\) \(Article\)
- Hulse, Edward Hamilton Westrow: Letters written from the English front in France, privately printed 1916, letter from 28 December 1914 includes a description of the Christmas truce, pp. 56-70 \(Internet Archive\) \(Book\)
- Mason, Amanda: The Real Story Of The Christmas Truce \(Imperial War Museums\) \(Article\)
- Transkribierte Briefe/Tagebucheinträge zum Weihnachtsfrieden \(Pfarreiengemeinschaft Geltendorf\) \(Primary Source\)
- Walkinton, Leslie Marmaduke: interview, reel three includes a description of his participation in the Christmas truce \(Imperial War Museums\) \(Audio\)
- Wedderburn-Maxwell, John: interview, reel three includes a description of his participation in the Christmas truce \(Imperial War Museums\) \(Audio\)

Metadata

Regional Section(s)

Central Europe > Germany

Western Europe > France

Western Europe > Great Britain and Ireland > Great Britain

Western Europe > Italy

Thematic Section(s)

Violence

Subjects

Warfare and the military > Battles, battlefields and campaigns > Battles, battlefields and campaigns, Western Front

Warfare and the military > Disobedience > Disobedience, other forms

Warfare and the military > Soldiers, experiences and attitudes > Images of the enemy

Warfare and the military > Warfare, land > Trench warfare

Author Keywords

Truce; fraternisation; Trench Warfare; Mutinies; Obedience

GND Subject Headings

[Weltkrieg \[1914-1918\] ; Westfront ; Weihnachten ; Waffenstillstand](#)

LC Subject Headings

Christmas Truce, 1914

Rameau Subject Headings

Guerre mondiale \(1914-1918\) -- Fraternisations entre soldats ennemis

Key Person(s)

Key Location(s)

Title

Christmas Truce

Author(s)

Alexandre Lafon

Article Type

Encyclopedic Entry

Classification Group

Events

Articles That Link Here

Food and Nutrition; Memory of the War: Popular Memory 1918-1945, 1945 to the Present; Memory of the War: Popular Memory 1918-1945, 1945 to the Present; Warfare 1914-1918 \(Russian Empire\); Life and Death of Soldiers; Practice of Sports; Pope Benedict XV; Wartime Emotions: Honour, Shame, and the Ecstasy of Sacrifice; Between Acceptance and Refusal - Soldiers' Attitudes Towards War \(Germany\); Xenophobia; Between Acceptance and Refusal - Soldiers' Attitudes Towards War; Photography; Centenary \(Computer Games\); Film/Cinema \(France\); Between Acceptance and Refusal - Soldiers' Attitudes Towards War \(Russian Empire\) and Between Acceptance and Refusal - Soldiers' Attitudes Towards War \(Russian Empire\)