

Fosdick, Raymond B.

By Joseph W. Ryan

Raymond B. Fosdick (1883-1972)

Raymond B. Fosdick, Chairman for the Commission on Training Camp Activities for the U.S. Army during the war, monitored soldier morale and devised programs.

Harris & Ewing: Raymond B. Fosdick, photograph, n.p., n.d.; source: Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, LC-H25- 45605-BC, <http://www.loc.gov/pictures/item/hec2009005482/>.

Courtesy of the Library of Congress.

Fosdick, Raymond Blaine

Public Administrator

Born 09 June 1883 in Buffalo, USA

Died 19 July 1972 in Newtown, USA

Summary

Raymond Blaine Fosdick served as the Chairman for the Commission on Training Camp Activities for the United States Army during its involvement in the First World War. In this position, he monitored soldier morale and devised programs to see to its maintenance.

Table of contents

1 Background

2 Involvement in the First World War

3 Post-war Activities

Selected Bibliography

Citation

Background

Raymond Blaine Fosdick (1883-1972) served as the Chairman for the Commission on Training Camp Activities for the United States Army during its involvement in the First World War. A lawyer and public administrator with a strong interest in social reform, Fosdick graduated from Princeton in 1905 and the New York Law School in 1908. By 1910 he had become the Commissioner of Accounts for the City of New York, where he fought corruption. In 1913, he joined the John D. Rockefeller \(1839-1937\) funded Bureau of Social Hygiene, and completed a study of police administration in Europe (European Police Systems, 1915). In 1915-1916, he worked with the New York City and International Boards of Education on educational facilities.

Involvement in the First World War

In April 1917, Secretary of War Newton D. Baker \(1871-1937\) appointed Fosdick Chairman of the newly created Commission on Training Camp Activities (CTCA), largely based on Fosdick's experience as a special representative of the War Department investigating troop conditions on the Mexican Border during the Mexican Punitive Expedition in 1916. As a progressive dedicated to the ideas of social hygiene popular at the time, Fosdick approached his new duties with the CTCA from a moral perspective. On the Mexican border he had seen the effects of alcohol, prostitution, and venereal disease on US troops, and recognized the need to preserve combat power by limiting vice. He also recognized, however, that nature abhors a vacuum. Removal of vice would not be enough. Fosdick sought to replace vice with activities beneficial to the soldier – activities that would keep the Army healthy, clean, and morally straight. He therefore organized the CTCA into six divisions, departments and committees: the Athletic, Social Hygiene, and Law Enforcement Divisions, the Camp Music Department, the Military Entertainment Committee, and the National Smileage Committee, which sold coupon books to fund tickets for soldiers to attend wholesome entertainments. Fosdick also worked closely with organizations such as the Young Men's Christian Association, the Red Cross, and the Salvation Army. Toward the end of the war, Fosdick had modified his views – stressing morale over morals. He felt that the greatest threat to morale was poor officer-enlisted relations. He noted that the American Expeditionary Forces in France were filled with intelligent soldiers who were beginning to challenge the absolute authority of their sometimes incompetent officers, and suggested to the War Department that this problem was more significant than those in the moral realm. Fosdick's findings regarding officer-enlisted relations were validated in the Second World War.

Post-war Activities

After World War I, Fosdick served as Undersecretary for the League of Nations until it became apparent that the United States would not join the League. He then returned to the Bureau of Social Hygiene and later private law practice until he was appointed President of the Rockefeller Foundation in 1936, where he served until his retirement in 1948.

Joseph W. Ryan, Jesuit College Preparatory School, Dallas

Selected Bibliography

- Anonymous: U.S. Army morals and recreations. Raymond B. Fosdick, just back from France, says it is up to this nation to be worthy of its army, in: The New York Times, 4 August 1918.
- Brandt, Allan M.: No magic bullet. A social history of venereal disease in the United States since 1880, New York, 1985: Oxford University Press.
- Bristow, Nancy K.: Making men moral. Social engineering during the Great War, New York, 1996: New York University Press.
- Fosdick, Raymond Blaine: Princeton University Library, Princeton, Department of Rare Books and Special Collections. Seeley G. Mudd Manuscript Library, Public Policy Papers, Raymond Blaine Fosdick Papers, MC055.
- Keene, Jennifer D.: Doughboys, the Great War, and the remaking of America, Baltimore, 2001: Johns Hopkins University Press.

Citation

Joseph W. Ryan: Fosdick, Raymond B., in: 1914-1918-online. International Encyclopedia of the First World War, ed. by Ute Daniel, Peter Gatrell, Oliver Janz, Heather Jones, Jennifer D. Keene, Alan Kramer, and Bill Nasson, issued by Freie Universität Berlin, Berlin 2014-10-08. DOI: 10.15463/ie1418.10133

External Links

- Allen, Edward Frank and Fosdick, Raymond Blaine: Keeping Our Fighters Fit for War and After, New York 1918 \(Internet Archive\) \(Book\)
- Fosdick, Raymond Blaine: European Police Systems, 1915 \(Internet Archive\) \(Book\)
- Fosdick, Raymond Blaine: The War and Navy Departments Commissions on Training Camp Activities, 1 September 1918 \(Internet Archive\) \(Article\)
- United States, War Dept., Commission On Training Camp Activities: The War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, Forgotten Books \(Article\)

Metadata

Regional Section(s)

North America > USA

Thematic Section(s)

Home Front

Subjects

Politics, law > Post-war politics > League of Nations

Warfare and the military > Military planning and recruitment > Strategies, military

Warfare and the military > Trauma and medical care > Hygiene

Warfare and the military > Trauma and medical care > Medical services, military

Warfare and the military > Trauma and medical care > Venereal diseases

Author Keywords

Commission on Training Camp Activities

GND Subject Headings

Fosdick, Raymond Blaine

LC Subject Headings

Fosdick, Raymond B. \(Raymond Blaine\), 1883-1972

Key Person(s)

Rockefeller, John D.; Baker, Newton D.

Key Location(s)

Buffalo; New York City; Newtown; Princeton

Title

Fosdick, Raymond B.

Author(s)

Joseph W. Ryan

Article Type

Encyclopedic Entry

Classification Group

Persons